

The Problem:

Automatic Transmission Fluid (ATF) services are often neglected and even when performed, are often incomplete. This can lead to automatic transmission shifting problems and premature repairs or replacement. 90% of automatic transmission failures are due to overheating and fluid contamination. A typical transmission drain and refill service replaces only 40% of the old contaminated ATF.

1. The remainder is trapped inside valve bodies, the torque converter and transmission cooler lines.
2. New ATF from a conventional drain and refill service can often loosen damaging sludge and varnish deposits leading to shift problems and even transmission failure.
3. Automatic transmission replacement can cost $2,000 or more.

Don't let your transmission take you for a ride. Get a Briganti's Transmission Flush Service. A typical transmission flush replaces only about 40% of the old, contaminated fluid. Briganti's Transmission Flush Service safely removes sludge and varnish deposits and replaces over 95% of the used fluid, then conditioners are added to the fresh ATF to extend ATF life, revitalize seals and O-rings and help maintain smooth shifting.

The Solution:

Take care of your automatic transmission by routinely performing a Briganti's Transmission Flush Service. This service utilizes patented equipment and specially formulated chemicals to solve the problems often associated with conventional drain and refill services.
